Healing From Social Trauma
Using Satir Transformational Systemic Therapy (TRA-19)

About The Workshop:

A ‘social trauma’ is the traumatic consequence of events or situations such as natural calamities, wars, accidents, kidnapping, mourning, exposure to risks and danger, etc, which involve a community or one’s own definable social group such as family and peer groups.

With recent ongoing events in Hong Kong, there can be a tendency to get stuck in the stories, images and chaos of what is happening. Social trauma, regardless of the causes, inflicts states of psychological, emotional, physiological, spiritual, and sociological injuries on the members of the group that has the potential to get passed down from one generation to the next. As Virginia Satir said, “It’s not about what happens, it’s about what we DO with what happens”. Events have an impact on individuals, relationships, and society and while what has already happened cannot change, the IMPACT of what has happened CAN change.

The severity of the impact of a specific trauma is influenced by an individual’s past experiences and traumas. Research of the neurological and endocrine systems makes it very clear that it is possible to heal from the impacts of trauma. It is possible, through a deeply experiential, transformational therapeutic process, to greatly reduce the impact of the trauma and help one grow in a positively directional way towards peace, joy and empowerment.

This workshop will demonstrate ways to begin the healing process soon after trauma occurs as well as with past traumas. This will include:

◆ How to release the traumatic energies held in the physical neurological system as “body memory”.
◆ How to help the client change their intrapsychic system including their emotions, perceptions, expectations and behaviours
◆ How to use the important role spirituality in the healing process.
◆ How to help families heal from the impact of trauma so that they can connect and support each other in healthy ways.

The workshop leader will incorporate lecturettes, discussion, experiential exercises, small group work and skill development practice as part of the program. The workshop will also cover the basic knowledge on the Satir Model. This workshop is intended for helping professionals working with people in therapy.
